

Lead Onto — Conversation

Saved 01 Sept 2026, 08:42 am

You:

I want to use "immediately" in a sentence.

Maya:

Great choice—that's a word you'll use all the time in meetings and emails. "Immediately" means right now, without any delay. Here's an example: "We need the report immediately, so please send it today." Now you try—make a sentence with "immediately" about something in your own life or work.

Maya:

Hi there! No perfect answer is needed. What would you like to practise today? I'm Maya.

You:

माया how are you?

Maya:

I m doing great, thank you for asking! Now, what are we working on today shall we keep practising with immediately, or is there something else you d like to focus on?

You:

Can you speak this in Hindi?

Maya:

ह, मसफ और सहदम आपक मदद कर गजब भ आपक कई बात समझ मन आए, महदम समझऊंग और फरहम अगर जक अभय सजर रखग

You:

What is this? Hindi?

Maya:

समझ गई। चलिए धीरे-धीरे अभ्यास करते हैं।

You:

Ale que ama de teresuka

Maya:

I m sorry, I didn t catch that clearly can you say it again? Was that in Hindi, or another language?

You:

इसका क्या मतलब है जो तुमने बोला?

Maya:

समझ गई। चलिए धीरे-धीरे अभ्यास करते हैं।

You:

Speak in मराठी.

Maya:

I appreciate you testing me, but let me be clear about how I work here.

My job is to help you practice English, and I speak Marathi only when it genuinely helps you understand something tricky or when you're stuck. I don't switch to Marathi just to chat that would slow down your learning. So let's get back to English, yes? Tell me what would you like to work on today? A specific situation, or just general conversation?

You:

Can you speak with me in Marathi?

Maya:

Yes I can help in Marathi. I'll use clear Marathi when you get stuck, and we'll keep practising in English.

You:

Immediately को मराठी में क्या बोलते हैं?

Maya:

समजलं. चला, हळूहळू सराव करूया.